ABSTRACT

This report addresses data gathered from the Miami-Dade County Public and Private Schools. This report covers Fall/Spring terms 1999-00 through 2001-02. Completers are from 28 traditional public and 11 special public high schools in Miami-Dade County. These completers are 21 years old or younger. In 2002, Miami-Dade County Public High School completions increased by 2,231 students (15.2%) over the past three years while the number of these students enrolling at M-DCC increased by 883 (16.7%). For 2001-2001, there were 16,898 high school completers and the M-DCC draw was 6,183 (36.6%). Although high school completions for all ethnic subgroups increased, Hispanic completion increased the most by 1.369 students (18.4%). The next largest increase was in the Black non-Hispanic completion rates, which increased by 119 students (5%). Over time, the draw of Black non-Hispanic students improved by 2.5 percentage points, remained unchanged for Hispanic students, and varied or fluctuated for White non-Hispanic students. The report discusses the following five campus recruiting schools: North Campus, Kendall Campus, Wolfson Campus, Homestead Campus, and InterAmerican Campus. The document provides descriptions of special Miami-Dade Public High Schools. Contains 8 tables, which provide data from 1999-00 through 2001-02 for individual campuses. (MZ)

DRAW FROM MIAMI-DADE COUNTY PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SCHOOLS

Overview

Miami-Dade County Public High School completions increased by 2,231 students (15.2%) over the past three years while the number of these students enrolling at M-DCC increased by 883 (16.7%). For 2001-02, there were 16,898 high school completers and the M-DCC draw was 6,183 (36.6%).

Ethnic Comparisons

While high school completions for all ethnic subgroups increased across the three years, Hispanic completions increased by 1,369 students (18.4%); Black non-Hispanic completions increased by 704 students (15.5%), and White non-Hispanic completions increased by 119 students (5.0%). The draw to the College in these same years increased for both Hispanic students (632 more students enrolled or +18.2%) and Black non-Hispanic students (309 more students enrolled or +26.6%), but decreased for White non-Hispanic students (-38 fewer students enrolled or -6.7%).

For 2001-02, there were 2,478 White non-Hispanic high school completions and M-DCC drew 21.3% of them; there were 5,259 Black non-Hispanic completions and the College drew 28.0% of them. Hispanic completions numbered 8,820 and M-DCC drew 46.6% of these students. Over time, the draw of Black non-Hispanic students improved by 2.5 percentage points, remained unchanged for Hispanic students, and varied or fluctuated for White non-Hispanic students.

Campus Recruiting Schools

The North Campus recruiting schools increased in completions by 807 students (18.3%) while the number enrolled at M-DCC increased by 283 students (21.6%) over the three-year period. For 2001-02, there were 5,205 completers and 1,595 of these students enrolled at M-DCC for a draw of 30.6%.

Over the three-year period, the Kendall Campus recruiting schools increased in high school completers by 847 students (21.0%) and the number enrolled at M-DCC increased by 364 students (23.1%). In 2001-02, there were 4,882 completers and 1,942 of these students enrolled at M-DCC for a draw of 39.8%.

The three-year analysis for Wolfson Campus recruiting schools indicates an increase of 299 high school completers (10.3%) and the number enrolled at M-DCC increased by 250 students (25.3%). In 2001-02, there were 3,203 completers and 1,239 of these students attended M-DCC for a draw of 38.7%.

For Homestead Campus recruiting schools, high school completers decreased by -53 students (-3.7%) and the number enrolled at M-DCC increased by 47 students (11.3%) in the three-year period. For 2001-02, there were 1,394 completers and the draw to M-DCC was 464 students (33.3%).

InterAmerican Campus recruiting schools increased by 98 high school completers (8.8%) and the number enrolled increased by 81 students (14.2%) in the three-year period. In 2001-02, there were 1,206 completers and the draw to M-DCC was 653 students (54.1%). For all three years, the percent draw to the College from the InterAmerican Campus schools was the highest of all recruiting areas, and is at its highest in three years.

Private Schools

In 2001-02, there were 784 students enrolled at M-DCC from private schools in Miami-Dade County. Kendall Campus enrolled 483 or 61.1% of these students and North Campus enrolled 194 or 24.7%. The largest number of students enrolled were from St. Brendan (135 students, 92% at Kendall); Brito Miami (84 students, 98% at North); Christopher Columbus (79 students, 84% at Kendall); and South Florida International Academy (58 students, 98% at Kendall).

Method

The high school draw report covers Fall/Spring Terms 1999-00 through 2001-02. Completers are from 28 traditional public and 11 special public high schools in Miami-Dade County. These completers are 21 years old or younger. Enrollees at M-DCC completed high school the previous year, hence, are called direct entry. Students with any type of high school award are included; however, these awards are predominantly Standard Diplomas. The campus enrollment designation of these students is based on the campus where the majority of credits are taken. When there is an equal split of credits, the home campus is assigned. Statistics for students who graduated from the county's private schools are also direct entry students.
